An Evening Echo.

There is a time in every man's education when he arrives at the conviction that envy is ignorance; that imitation is suicide; that he must take himself for better or worse, as his portion; that though the wide universe is full of good, no kernel of nourishing corn can come to him but through his toil bestowed on that plot of ground which is given him to till. Trust thyself; every heart vibrates to that iron string.—R. W. EMERSON.

Where, Oh, Where?

Porturbedly asks the Huntington Advertiser.

"By the way, what has become of the solicitude of the stand past newspapers of this state over the hard lot of the poor wool grower in this state? We were told that the removal of the duty would reduce the price of the wool to practically nothing, that the wool grower would be ruined. The duty was removed, yet the price of raw wool is higher than for many years."

Yes, but, by the way, what has become of the wool grower? Imports taken into consideration, it would appear that they had all moved, sheep and baggage, to Argentina, Australia, New Zealand and elsewhere.

Interest is Growing.

A man was passing along the street when a small dog jumped in his path and bit him upon the ankle. Looking around until he could select the boy who seemed to be most amused at the incident, the man grabbed the urchin by the shoulder and demanded: "Say, do you know your dog bit me on the ankle?" "Well, mister," replied the grinning lad, "Jupiter is only a pup. He couldn't reach any better. When he grows bigger he'll be able to bite you higher up."

The Daily Telegram's Summer Pastime may seem small and trifling when you first start at it, but just keep on and you'll be agreeably surprised at the way it will grow in both importance and interest. Follow the announcements from day to day.

Eugenics.

A Philadelphia newspaper says that the amateur eugenicists who are rejoicing at the decision of the courts that the Wisconsin eugenics marriage-law is constitutional, should remind themselves that there is a great difference between a statute which is in the power of the legislature to enact and a law which will accomplish the purpose sought by its promoters.

One of the speakers before the convention of the Eugenic Research Association held recently expressed the opinion of many able and conscientious investigators when he said that medical men do not know enough about heredity, the causes of feeble-mindedness and similar things to warrant lawmakers in passing any radical statutes dealing with marriage. Every reformer has to pass through the stages of investigation and, according to the experts, the matter of eugenics is still in the early stages of investigation.

Sufficient is known, however, to warrant the requirement of a reasonably clean bill of health from every applicant for marriage permission for the sake at least of the immediate persons concerned.

Enforcing Yost Law.

West Virginia is soon to have the chance of seeing whether prohibition prohibits as to the liquor business. Many opposed to prohibition have contended that regulation of the liquor trade is more successful than attempted prohibition of it. Others hold an opposite view.

As the question is solely a state one, enforcement of the Yost law will be up to the state through its various county officials mostly. While state officials will take an important part in its enforcement, yet the burden will fall upon the county officials, the prosecuting attorneys and court judges as well as grand juries.

While there may be city co-operation, yet the city codes or charters generally do not admit of ordinances providing for such severe punishment as the state law provides for. As this is true city enforcement would result in light sentences and really do harm.

Governor Hatfield has emphasized the fact that he intends to see that the Yost law is enforced and no one questions his determination. It remains to be seen how successful the enforcement will be. There is every reason to believe that it will be expensive but community co-operation will materially aid. Public sentiment for enforcement will help very much.

Some Advice Unheeded.

War in camp is averted by the Exponent on the eve of the Democratic county convention and the little bird has evidently chirped the fact that the feeling is becoming bitter among candidates and their "constituents."

The Exponent thinks it is foolish for them or anyone else to say "those" mean things and it begs them not to do it. Addressing itself to some it says in reference to a man seeking to hold office: "You would not say them to him, but you will about him which is cowardly."

The advice may be wholesome, but it does not seem to be having much effect. Some of those candidates, especially the machine ones, are out to win in any way and at any cost. They do not mind resorting to vilification and trickery and they are not going to do otherwise until they are sure of the goal.

Pin Head Prosperity.

The efforts of the Democratic press bureau to make Pennsylvania prosperous are truly heroic, says the Connelville, Pa., Courier, but not always truthful. The Courier gives an example, as follows:

A recent statement announced that ovens were being fired up in the Connelville coke region, when about 3,000 ovens had just been put out. New comes the glad tidings that a woolen mill has started up in Stroudsburg, Palmer's home town, and that a butter factory at West Chester is working over time.

But those 3,000 coke ovens remain idle, and iron and steel business is running to only about one-half capacity; under Republican administration and Republican policies they were running practically full. The people in the Connelville region are more interested in the operation of their coke ovens than they are in the operation of the Stroudsburg woolen mill and a West Chester milk factory. Moreover, they will not be deceived by any pin-head prosperity-inventors.

Practical Ways to Save.

"Wealth can be accumulated only by the earnings of industry and the savings of frugality."—John Tyler.

Here are some ways that people have saved successfully. Perhaps you can adopt one of them yourself.

Save all coins of a certain denomination—pennies, nickels or dimes, that come into your possession. Or save every coin you receive bearing a certain date—1910 for instance.

Let the man who shaves himself put away the price of a shave every time he does so; likewise when he shines his own shoes, let the coin saved become a part of his permanent capital.

Whenever you make a purchase at a bargain price, save the difference between that and the regular price. In that way bargain sales will have a real meaning to you.

A certain young man gave himself a note for $1,000, and made it payable in four years. He took a certificate of deposit at the bank for $20 the first of every month. In less than four years he had his thousand dollars, compound interest on his deposits materially hastening the day. His thousand dollars was invested in a bond, and he is now at work accumulating his second thousand. The interest on his bond will help a whole lot in doing so. Moreover he has the "saving habit" firmly established, and is putting away $25 a month from his earnings.

A school teacher had $100 saved and bought a lot for $750, applying her hundred dollars on the purchase price. The owner of the lot was willing to sell on long time, because his mortgage on the lot was drawing interest. It was a good bargain for the teacher, because she had a goal to reach, and she saved for her lot what otherwise she would have spent on luxuries. She deposited in the bank fifteen dollars a month from her salary and twice a year applied her savings on the mortgage. In about three years she had her lot clear. She is now saving another nest egg, and pretty soon expects to build a home on her lot.

A housewife struggled for years trying to keep grocery and meat bills in hand. She finally hit upon the plan of having her husband give her a monthly allowance. She then set her aim to keep well within her allowance, and put the result of each month's economies in the bank at interest. This was several years ago, and now she has a tidy sum to her credit. What is more, she has learned the fine art of buying, and has acquired the faculty of making a dollar go much farther than it did before she had a plan, with a bank account an important feature of it.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

What it Means.

The decision in favor of the long and short haul clause means that the railroads will be short part of their haul.—Wheeling News.

Less Majestic.

A business man, writing to the New York Evening Post says: "Personally I would like to make a deal with Mexico and swap Wilson for Huerta." Doesn't this come perilously near less majestic.—Grafton Sentinel.

Too Much So.

Some of the papers in this state are so Democratic, they seem to want West Virginia to lose out in the Virginia debt suit, because a Republican governor is managing the defense. This is just a little too much so in politics.—Parkersburg State Journal.

After July 1.

The courtesy of Saturday's Democratic convention to Mr. Bowen did not extend to permit him to speak without a persistent and rude attempt to drown him out by all kinds of uncouth noises. Perhaps after July 1 another kind of spirit will prevail in the Democratic conventions in this state.—Charleston Mail.

Question of the Hour.

A matter which ought to come up for intelligent discussion before the electorate in the present campaign is the development of the water power in West Virginia's rivers. The next legislature ought to be given a distinct mandate as to the formulation of a policy in dealing with private corporations desirous of investing money in the development of hydroelectric power plants. The potential energy of our rivers is now going to waste, and it is in line with a wise policy of conservation to remedy that condition as soon as possible.—Morgantown Post-Chronicle.

The New Era.

Monday began the final week of the licensed saloon in Huntington. Although licenses will hold during Monday and Tuesday of the coming week, the majority of the Huntington dealers will close their doors on Saturday night, never again to reopen them to the trade.

This impending event will usher in a new era. It will work material economic changes. West Virginia, after more than fifty years of license, will enter the ranks of the prohibition states with a law far more drastic than has ever been written into the statute books of any other American commonwealth. And whatever may have been the history of prohibition or attempted prohibition in other states, there is a profound conviction that it will be made effective in West Virginia, and that it will endure for a long period of years.—Huntington Herald-Dispatch.

THE DAILY NOVELETTE

THE GUILTY PARTY.

Oh, the moon,
Beautiful moon;
It tangles up lovers
Forever, who spoon.

She had managed to separate him from the rest of the picnicers and they were walking slowly through the woods.

The moon was full but Highsbee Saucers was perfectly sober.

"Oh, Mr. Saucers," she twittered, "doesn't the moon fill you with tender thoughts?"

"How do you mean, 'tender thoughts'?" he asked.

"Oh, thoughts of romance, of love, of marriage," she explained coyly. He thought a moment.

"By jove!" he exclaimed, "I believe it does."

They walked awhile in silence, and then she softly said, "What was that you were saying about love and romance—and marriage?"

"Was I saying anything about him—about them?" he asked uneasily.

"Why, yes," she were talking about the moon, you know, and how it fills you with tender thoughts of romance, and love—and marriage."

"Ah, yes," he said, looking up thoughtfully. Absently he put out one arm and she adroitly placed her waist within its half circle.

"Now," she cooed, "what was that about love, and romance, and marriage?"

Of course it ended with him a prisoner for life, but the point of the story is that he always blamed it on the moon.

WESLEYAN

College Commencement Held with Brilliant Exercises in City of Buckhannon.

BUCKHANNON, June 25.—The twenty-fourth annual commencement of West Virginia Wesleyan College was held here yesterday. Two exercises marking the day. In the morning the college commencement was held with a large crowd in attendance and with Dr. W. O. Thompson, of Ohio State University, delivering the address. Thirteen men and women received degrees and honors of magna cum laude were given to Morgan M. Brooks, Mabel Elizabeth Gay, Walter Enoch Hall, Gladys Carter Mayfield and Opal M. Snodgrass, while the honor of cum laude was given to Byrd Lee Pickens. Dr. Thomas's address was one of the most scholarly ever delivered in Buckhannon at a Wesleyan commencement and made a profound impression. The honorary degree of

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages. That disease is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. CENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by all Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Cured of Indigestion.

Mrs. Sadie P. Clawson, Indiana, Pa., was bothered with indigestion. "My stomach pained me night and day," she writes. "I would feel bloated and have headache and belching after eating. I also suffered from constipation. My daughter had used Chamberlain's Tablets and they did her so much good that she gave me a few doses of them and insisted on my trying them. They helped me as nothing else has done." For sale by all dealers.—Advertisement.

L. D. was conferred on Frank Butler Trotter, now dean of the College of Liberal Arts at West Virginia University at Morgantown, but for seventeen years a teacher in Wesleyan and for the greater part of that period the vice president of the college. Prof. Trotter is most favorably known in Wesleyan and in Buckhannon. The announcement that an honorary degree had been conferred on one who had labored so long and so earnestly for the success of Wesleyan brought forth prolonged applause from the large crowd present.

In the afternoon the academic departments commencement was held and sixty-two were given diplomas in their respective courses. Dr. G. D. Smith, an alumnus of Wesleyan and now pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church at Clarksburg, delivered the address, which proved to be one of the features of the whole commencement week. Last night the Alumni banquet was held at the Valley hotel and in addition to having a spirited evening plans were launched looking toward the largest and best gathering of alumni at Wesleyan's twenty-fifth anniversary next year that has ever assembled.

The board of trustees of the college, which had been in continuous session since Monday, finally adjourned at a late hour last night. Dr. Doney was retained as president of the college, and will return in the summer to enter again on his duties. Acting President Haught will resume his old duties of dean of the College of Liberal Arts. Morgan M. Brooks, one of Wesleyan's honor graduates this year, and for a number of years superintendent of the Grafton schools, and one of the best and most favorably known educators of the state, was elected to the position of principal of the academy and teacher of mathematics in the academic department. He will succeed Prof. McLaurin in the chair of mathematics and Prof. O. H. Helwig, who has been acting dean of the academy. The resignation of J. L. Felton, athletic director for men; Miss Kolb, athletic instructor for women; Miss Taylor, one of the normal teachers; Miss Elders, one of the music teachers, and all but one of the entire commercial department faculty, were received and accepted. A special committee was selected to fill these vacancies.

The reasons for the wholesale resignations in the commercial department was that the Wesleyan School of Commerce was abolished as a separate department of the college and no complete courses will be offered in it. A special committee was appointed looking to the immediate establishment of a school or college of agriculture to be ready for business at the opening of the fall term. It is expected that this will be done and that a complete course leading to a degree will be established. It is understood that a number of teachers are in view to fill the positions of athletic directors, music and normal teachers. It is reported that Frank M. Pleasant, all American quarter back in 1907, and for four years a member of the famous Carlisle Indian football team, has been favorably considered for the position of athletic director for men.

Clean Up Week

Philadelphia recently had a "Clean Up Week" and of its results the director in charge said:

"We had twice as much advertising this year as last and our clean-up campaign was just twice as effective. The success of the campaign is directly proportional to the amount of advertising we do."

"The only way to focus attention on our plan was to advertise. Without plenty of publicity the house-cleaning would have been spread over the whole year, and it would have been impossible to remove the dirt and rubbish removed, if piled in a city block, would tower 22 feet high."
